SUBJ: Interview with J. Vomittag of Cats and Dogs Magazine

Hello,

This is to confirm your in person interview on Friday, November 15 at 9 AM with Janet Vomittag, editor for Cats and Dogs Magazine.

Janet is Interested in writing an article to raise awareness about how important it is to help feral cats during Michigan's frigid winters. She wants to gear her article specifically towards how this nonprofit has worked towards combating this issue and how local residents can help.

You might want to review some of the recent strides the organization has made in conjunction with the issue. Also review the steps on how to make winter shelters.

All About Animals Information:

- AAA is the largest low-cost to no-cost spay and neuter nonprofit animals welfare organization in Michigan with clinics servicing Warren, Flint, Detroit and Auburn Hills.
- AAA brings low-cost to no-cost wellness care to under-served communities in Michigan with our mobile units.
- AAA provides free health screenings and preventative care to over 50,000 pets each year.
- For over five years, AAA has been conducting shelter building workshops to raise awareness about the efforts local residents can make to help feral cats.

Building Winter Shelters:

Winter shelters are simple and inexpensive to make at home. Supplies need to make these shelters are:

- Styrofoam coolers
- Nashua multi-purpose aluminum tape
- Straw

- Reflectix mylar insulation

Below I have also included information about publication and link to the most recent issue in the magazine.

If you have any questions prior to the interview, you can reach me at XXX-XXX-XXXX. See you soon.

Best,
Jourdan Kania
